Everyone needs a place to call home, but many Missourians struggle to find or maintain safe, quality, affordable housing that meets their needs.

The number of Missourians facing persistent housing challenges due to age, disability, homelessness or poverty is substantial. Nearly one in five are over age 62; one in ten under age 65 has a disability; nearly 9000 are homeless (including more than 800 Veterans) and one in six have income at or below the Federal Poverty Level. Additionally, the average low income household in Missouri spends 46% of their monthly income on housing and utilities.

There is amble evidence to show that individuals and families fare better when they have access to safe, quality, affordable housing that meets their current and future needs. Elderly Missourians residing in Universally Designed homes are able to age in place, verses moving to assisted living or nursing facilities. Children with respiratory complications have reduced medical costs when living in a home with improved air quality. Low income families are able to pursue improved employment options when not threatened with homelessness. Students educational performance improve when living in a stable home. And, communities are stronger and healthier when residents are able to choose where they want to live and remain long enough to become a member of the community.

The Community Caring Council cordially invites you to attend a one day conference to examine the state of housing in Cape Girardeau, Jackson and surrounding Southeast Missouri counties and ways to promote "A Home for Everyone".
